

A New World

For today the world will be okay. It will be safe and happy. Everyone will be loved and needed but that will change tomorrow. The world will smoulder in the fire of my rage. It will never be the same. The people will be all dead, and for those few survivors, there will be long dark nights, with the things that roam through the darkness. Have fun little ones. By Zoe Hewitt