

The Day the Snake Came to School

It was one beautiful day at Ulladulla High to show case all of our personal interest projects Mr Ramsden had set for us. There were many amazing props and presentations. One of the most “out there” props was a Diamond Python! Everyone who was game enough got to hold the snake and many people did not want to go near it and I agreed! Then one girl wanted to hold the snake and she did but when she was giving the python back to its owner it got a bit freaked out and decided to poo! The poo went all over the girl’s shoes and on the carpet as well. Luckily two boys “volunteered” to clean up the carpet and I sure was glad I didn’t need to clean it up.
